COURSE DESCRIPTION: We will cover three general problems in this course and try to reach a few conclusions.

1. Political science is distinct from ideology, but in what way or ways? The first thing to discuss, then, is this question, and the contemporary issue of political correctness, which is the face ideology presents today. There are no assigned texts for this section, but there are plenty of discussions of the problem available in the library and online. Several links are available on D2L. You should read them.

2. Traditional or “legacy” ideologies about which most people have heard something include liberalism and conservatism (among others). We will discuss the following problems: Where did they come from? What do they stand for? How are they related to one another? How, if at all, are they related to socialism? When did liberals start calling themselves “progressives?” What does “progress” mean? How are political ideologies related to the distinctive features of modern industrial societies? Again, no texts assigned, several D2L links are provided.

3. Contemporary ideologies sometimes are presented as being derived from legacy or traditional ideologies, but sometimes they describe themselves as innovations and solutions to social, economic or political problems that never previously existed. Two major contemporary ideologies we will discuss are environmentalism and feminism. We will discuss the following specific questions: Where did they come from? What do they advocate? What makes them ideologies? Are they really responses to unprecedented social or economic problems? Two books, one by M.J. Sangster, a second by Harvey Mansfield, should be read for this section.
4. Conclusions. Here the major problem is to understand if, or the extent to which, the original distinction between political ideology and political science stands up. We will discuss the following problems: Are ideologies an inevitable part of politics? Are policies invariably ideological?

5. Because of the necessity of delivering this course remotely, the lectures will be pre-recorded and available on D2L. In a face-to-face class, the lectures are 75 minutes; this is too long for most people (not just students) to be able to concentrate, so I have increased the number of lectures from about (2x13 weeks=) 26 to approximately twice as many 35 minute lectures. These are posted on D2L for viewing at the convenience of students. That is, there are no synchronous or “real-time” lectures. The recorded lectures will be posted shortly after they have been produced and will remain available on D2L all term. Students should take notes as in a face-to-face class and are encouraged to contact the instructor or the T.A. during “office” hours or by email if they have any comments or questions. Obviously, this is not as direct as raising questions and conducting conversation in class, but it seems to be the best alternative available.

6. There are four substantive sections to the course: (1) a general introduction that aims to answer the question: what is ideology? (2) a discussion of what I call legacy ideologies, chiefly liberalism and conservatism, followed by a discussion of the two most important contemporary ideologies, (3) environmentalism, which developed from late-nineteenth-century conservationism and (4) feminism, which grew in importance after World War 2. At the end of each section, there will be a quiz, also delivered via D2L. You will have 24 hours to complete the quiz, which is designed to evaluate students’ comprehension of the subject-matter discussed. (That is why it is a good idea to keep up with the lectures.) It will be an open-book quiz so you can consult the recorded lectures, your notes, power-point slides, etc. It should take about an hour to complete. Students can submit their answers to a specified drop-box on D2L.

COURSE OBJECTIVES & LEARNING OUTCOMES: There are two main objectives to this course, one dealing with the subject-matter, the second with the analytical approach to it that political science typically employs.

1. Regarding the subject-matter, namely what political ideologies actually advocate, students who successfully complete the course will have a good grasp of what the legacy ideologies of liberalism and conservatism mean as well as an understanding of a few of the contemporary ideologies that move so many individuals today to undertake political action, specifically environmentalism and feminism. There are, of course, other ideologies such as nationalism, fascism, tribalism, anarchism, socialism etc. but we cannot cover everything in an introductory course. Students may also be able to connect contemporary ideologies with what it means to live in a technological society such as our own.
2. Secondly, at the end of the course, students are expected to have an understanding of the difference between the rational analysis of political reality, which is the aim of political science, and the motivations of political actors, which is often (but not always) a response to ideology. Students are also expected to grasp the real-world limitations of that analytical distinction and thus also to grasp the real-world limitations of political science. Political science provides an analysis of politics, not a substitute for politics.

REQUIRED TEXTBOOK(S):

The following book is available in the bookstore: Harvey Mansfield, Manliness.

The second assigned text can be obtained from Amazon.ca: M.J. Sangster, The Real Inconvenient Truth.

Additional readings are posted on D2L and are listed in the section below on course schedule and topics.

TECHNOLOGY REQUIREMENTS

Because this course is given online, students will have to have reliable access to a computer with an operating system supported by the University, a web browser, broadband Internet connection etc. Since communication between the course instructor and students will be via email or telephone, a webcam and ancillary gear is not required.

ASSIGNMENT(S)

Students are expected, for obvious and commonsensical reasons, to watch the lectures on D2L and to take the quizzes at the end of each section to ensure they have grasped the content of the lectures. Students who do not take the quizzes or final exam or who do not submit a research paper and do not request an extension or deferral (see below for a discussion of late penalties, of extensions, and deferrals) will receive a zero for that component of the course.

Writing Statement:
Written assignments are often required in Political Science courses, including this one, and the quality of writing skills, including but not limited to such elements as grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, clarity, citation, and organization, will be taken into account in the determination of grades. Students are encouraged to make use of the services offered through Writing Support Services in the Student Success Centre (3rd floor of the Taylor Family Digital Library) or at http://www.ucalgary.ca/ssc/writing-support.

Additional information can be found at: http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/e-2htm.
Sources used in research papers must be properly documented. If you have any doubts about inserting a reference, put it in. You do not want to be suspected of plagiarism and, with current software available to anyone marking your paper, the detection of plagiarism is simple.
ESSAYS/RESEARCH PAPER

Two essay/research paper options are available. Whichever one is chosen, it will be due on the last class, December 9. You may submit an electronic copy on D2L to a drop-box either in Word or PDF format, or send an attachment on an email. A guide to the criteria used in marking your paper and the abbreviations used in comments is posted on D2L.

Option 1: The context for modern ideologies has often been described as our current technological society. Nature seems to provide neither guidance nor a sense of awe that limits what human beings think they can do. For many persons today, the presence of technology is immediately at hand in their electronic devices: smart phones and laptop computers, chiefly.

To fulfil option one, students must first turn off their smart phones and laptops for all social communication purposes: no email, no texting, no Instagram, no Facebook etc. Students may use their laptops to take notes in classes, but for nothing else. Obviously, you can use your phone for emergencies but that’s all.

Now, having cut yourself off from social media, keep a diary or a journal of your experience for one week (seven days). Then write up your notes and reflect upon what changed during the week without technological mediation in your life. There are several essays that can easily be accessed after you have experienced directly your week without social media that may assist you in formulating a coherent account of what happened. But the point is not first to do research on the problem of social media but initially to experience directly what it is to be divorced from it. It goes without saying that this option requires good faith participation: no cheating!

Some people find the absence of social media highly stressful. To write a meaningful essay, however, it is important to experience at least four days of deprival. That is the minimum you must endure to undertake option one. A week without social media, however, is the goal.

Option 2. In the section on “Schedule and Topics” above, a number of optional readings are listed. Others are linked on D2L in folders, as is a list of other books and articles you may consider for review. Option two is to do an analytical review of one of these readings or of any other book or article that is mutually agreed to by the student and the course director. The review is to be an analytical treatment of the argument developed by the author that deals with the following two questions: what are the author’s assumptions? How is the logic of the argument developed? It is not a summary of what any particular text says and even less is it a statement of whether you “like” the author’s argument. See “How to Write a Paper,” also posted on D2L.

Whichever option is chosen, the finished paper will be 10-12 pages, double-spaced in 12-point typeface. You may hand in an electronic version on email to a D2L drop-box. Whichever option you choose, make sure you put your name on the paper. The paper (and the quizzes and final exam) are due at 2359 (11:59PM) on the due dates. Make sure you keep a copy of each submitted assignment.
PARTICIPATION
Apart from the formal requirements of exams and essays, students will not be graded on how many questions they submit by email or by phone. That said, you are encouraged to raise questions, not least of all because doing so actualizes the virtue of courage. If you are not puzzled by what you hear in the lectures or read in the assignments, it is unlikely you will learn much. If you are puzzled, asking questions is the only way to move beyond perplexity.

QUIZZES
Quizzes will be due 24 hours after they are distributed. They should take no more than 1 hour to complete.

FINAL TAKE-HOME EXAMINATION
The final exam will be a take-home, and, like the quizzes, is an open book exam and consists of short answers and an essay. It will be available on D2L on the day of the last class (Dec 8) and will be due December 12th, 2020 @ 11:59 pm. It can be submitted to a dedicated D2L drop-box.

GRADE SCALE: The following grading scale will be used:

LATE PENALTIES
Unless students have a rational explanation such as a medical problem or a genuine emergency, the late penalty for handing in the essay/research paper is one mark a day and will be deducted from late submissions. From September 8 to December 9, students have sufficient time to complete a 12-page paper.

INSTRUCTOR GUIDELINES
Students requiring assistance are encouraged to speak to the instructor during class or their office hours. Should you wish to meet outside of office hours, please telephone or email to make an appointment. It is to the student’s advantage to keep such appointments. All meetings will be held virtually.

Email is a common form of communication but it is not always the most effective way of answering student questions. If you cannot make office hours, please request a one on one meeting outside of these hours, to be held virtually.
IMPORTANT POLICIES AND INFORMATION

Supporting Documentation and the Use of a Statutory Declaration

As stated in the University Calendar:

Students may be asked to provide supporting documentation for an exemption/special request. This may include, but is not limited to, a prolonged absence from a course where participation is required, a missed course assessment, a deferred examination, or an appeal. Students are encouraged to submit documentation that will support their situation. Supporting documentation may be dependent on the reason noted in their personal statement/explanation provided to explain their situation. This could be medical certificate/documentation, references, police reports, invitation letter, third party letter of support or a statutory declaration etc. The decision to provide supporting documentation that best suits the situation is at the discretion of the student. Students cannot be required to provide specific supporting documentation, such as a medical note.

Students can make a Statutory Declaration as their supporting documentation (available at ucalgary.ca/registrar). This requires students to make a declaration in the presence of a Commissioner for Oaths. It demonstrates the importance of honest and accurate information provided and is a legally binding declaration. Several registered Commissioners for Oaths are available to students at no charge, on campus. For a list of locations to access a Commissioner for Oaths, visit ucalgary.ca/registrar).

Falsification of any supporting documentation will be taken very seriously and may result in disciplinary action through the Academic Discipline regulations or the Student Non-Academic Misconduct policy.

This statement is accessible at: https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html

Absence From a Mid-term Examination

Students who are absent from a scheduled term test or quiz for legitimate reasons are responsible for contacting the instructor via email within 48 hours of the missed test to discuss alternative arrangements. A copy of this email may be requested as proof of the attempt to contact the instructor. Any student who fails to do so forfeits the right to a makeup test.

Deferral of a Final Examination

Deferral of a final examination can be granted for reasons of illness, domestic affliction, and unforeseen circumstances, as well as to those with three (3) final exams scheduled within a 24-hour period. Deferred final exams will not be granted to those who sit the exam, who have made travel arrangements that conflict with their exam, or who have misread the examination timetable. The decision to allow a deferred final exam rests not with the instructor but with Enrolment Services. Instructors should, however, be notified if you will be absent during the examination. The Application for Deferred Final Exam, deadlines, requirements and submission instructions can be found on the Enrolment Services website at https://www.ucalgary.ca/registrar/exams/deferred-exams.
Appeals
If a student has a concern about the course or a grade they have been assigned, they must first discuss their concerns with the instructor. If this does not resolve the matter, the student then proceed with an academic appeal. The first step in an academic appeal is to set up a meeting with the Department Head. Appeals must be requested within 15 days of receipt of the graded assignment.

University Regulations
Students are responsible for familiarizing themselves with the University policies found in the Academic Regulations sections of the Calendar at www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/academic-regs.html.

Student Accommodations
Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services; SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors. For additional information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/.

Students who require an accommodation in relation to their coursework based on a protected ground other than disability should communicate this need in writing to their Instructor.

The full policy on Student Accommodations is available at http://www.ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/student-accommodation-policy.pdf.

Plagiarism and Other Forms of Academic Misconduct
Academic misconduct in any form (e.g. cheating, plagiarism) is a serious academic offence that can lead to disciplinary probation, suspension or expulsion from the University. Students are expected to be familiar with the standards surrounding academic honesty; these can be found in the University of Calgary calendar at http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k.html. Such offences will be taken seriously and reported immediately, as required by Faculty of Arts policy.

Required Access to Technology

Please see the University’s resource page at https://ucalgary.service-now.com/it?id=kb_article&sys_id=86e7438013753ac06f3afbb2e144b031

Copyright Legislation
As stated in the University of Calgary Calendar, Academic Regulations, “students are required to read the University of Calgary policy on Acceptable Use of Material Protected by Copyright and requirements of the copyright act to ensure they are aware of the consequences of unauthorised sharing of course materials (including instructor notes, electronic versions of textbooks etc.). Students who use material protected by copyright in violation of this policy may be disciplined under the Non-Academic Misconduct Policy.”

Instructor Intellectual Property
Course materials created by instructors (including presentations and posted notes, labs, case studies, assignments and exams) remain the intellectual property of the instructor. These materials may NOT be reproduced, redistributed or copied without the explicit consent of the instructor. The posting of course materials to third party websites such as note-sharing sites without permission is prohibited. Sharing of extracts of these course materials with other students enrolled in the course at the same time may be allowed under fair dealing.

Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy (FOIP)
FOIP legislation requires that instructors maintain the confidentiality of student information. In practice, this means that student assignment and tests cannot be left for collection in any public place without the consent of the student. It also means that grades cannot be distributed via email. Final exams are kept by instructors but can be viewed by contacting them or the main office in the Department of Political Science. Any uncollected assignments and tests meant to be returned will be destroyed after six months from the end of term; final examinations are destroyed after one year.

Faculty of Arts Program Advising and Student Information Resources
For program planning and advice, please consult with the Arts Students’ Centre by calling 403-220-3580 or by email at artsads@ucalgary.ca. You can also visit arts.ucalgary.ca/advising for program assistance.

Campus Mental Health Resources

The University of Calgary recognizes the pivotal role that student mental health plays in physical health, social connectedness and academic success, and aspires to create a caring and supportive campus community where individuals can freely talk about mental health and receive supports when needed. We encourage you to explore the excellent mental health resources available throughout the university community, such as counselling, self-help resources, peer support or skills-building available through the following resources:
